Frosh Elect Sandra Oakley As Freshman Dance Queen

Sandra Oakley of Merrow Hall was crowned queen of the Freshman Dance last Wednesday night at Browning Hall. Dr. Francis H. Horn, URI president, presented Miss Oakley with a silver tray. The 18 year-old Cumberland girl is enrolled in the College of Pharmacy at URI.

More than 150 persons attended the class dance, set in a Mexican hacienda decor, and danced to the music of Tony Abbott and his orchestra.

Diana Dalton and Bruce Robbins won the twist contest which was judged by the dance's guests and chaperons.

The dance committee included the freshman class officers: Mike Pearson, president; John Meyer, vice president; Barbara Frost, secretary; Carl Jacobson, treasurer; and Diana Dalton, social committee chairman.

Gallogy Says 'Faculty Laymen' Unqualified for ROTC Review

Rhode Island's Lieutenant Governor has described as "ridiculous" the suggestion that the laymen on the URI faculty are qualified to review the ROTC program. The Lieutenant Governor's feelings were made known in a letter dated Feb. 8 to a university student who inquired as to the Lieutenant Governor's position on the matter.

"To suggest that laymen on the faculty, many of whom never served in the Armed Forces" are qualified to review a military curriculum, is of course, ridiculous," Edward P. Gallogly said.

"These individuals regard authority as represented by the military with distaste and contempt, and unfortunately many of these pass on their feelings to the youngsters they are charged with educating," he said.

He also called the arguments for the elimination of compulsory ROTC as "so shallow as to lead to the inescapable conclusion that to say the least they had lost their perspective."

The letter was originally sent to Al Szymanski, co-author of the Student Senate report on compulsory ROTC.

Regarding the statement "Basic ROTC fails to provide citizenship training," the Lt. Gov. said, "I believe this statement is based upon a misunderstanding as to what is needed and required of our citizenry if this nation is to survive.

"The willingness to sit at home and criticize those who have accepted responsibility of conducting public affairs is all too prevalent in this country, while a willingness to take part in the affairs of our community, and to accept the responsibility for our decisions is found all too rarely," he said.

"Being a useful citizen consists of more than being a vocal critic—it requires a willingness to accept discipline, often when we do not readily understand the reason for its imposition; it requires active, physical participation in events, rather than passive criticism of the activities of others," he said.

Attending college is not a right, Mr. Gallogly asserted, it is a privilege. "If a young man wishes to exercise the privilege of attending col-

Discrimination Work - Group Approved at NSM Conference

A resolution calling attention to discriminatory practices on Rhode Island college campuses was passed by the Rhode Island Northern Student Movement at its first conference held at URI last weekend.

The resolution recommended the setting up of study and action groups to seek solutions to the discrimination problems, especially in the areas of admissions, housing, employment, public accommodations and social life.

More than 60 students from Brown University, Pembroke College, Providence College, Rhode Island School of Design, Barrington College and URI attended the two-day conference which was sponsored jointly by the URI Students for Democratic Action and the Civil Liberties Forum of Brown and Pembroke.

The conference called upon the Area Committee of NSM to study and propose methods of conducting tests of Rhode Island's public accommodation facilities to determine their compliance with state laws concerning discrimination. The promotion of a program of increased opportunities for higher education among high school students in minority groups was supported.

The conference recommended the RINSM sponsor a sit-in in some area of the South as moral support for the Southern Student Movement. An examination of the feasibility of an observation trip to the South to be made by members of the RINSM was also recommended.

"The Rhode Island Equal Housing Opportunities Act," the fair housing bill now in committee at the Rhode Island General Assembly was supported by the conference. The executive committee of the RINSM will undertake a study to determine which action should be used to contribute to the passage of the fair housing bill.

Peter Countryman, executive director of the Northern Student Movement, addressed the conference on Friday night.

Mr. Countryman told the gathering that sit-ins and picketings are not adequate to handle the complex discrimination problem. He outlined what he considered the most important areas of discrimination.

"Employment, housing and public accommodations are big areas of discrimination but more important than these is discrimination in education," said Mr. Countryman.

"There is a low number of students of minority groups in college because they feel they will be refused if they apply, and it's much easier for them to go to a southern college," he further stated.

Alton W. Wiley, legal advisor to the Rhode Island branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, spoke at Saturday's meeting. He told the group that an effort is now being made to register non-white voters in the Providence area in preparation for this year's elections.

"Once political leaders see a mass of Negroes coming to register, a lot more recognition will be given the Negro in the city of Providence," Mr. Wiley said.

Dr. Barry A. Marks of Brown, chairman of the R.I. Advisory Committee on Civil Rights told the group that he saw hopeful signs in the approval of the Good Neighbor Pledge, which is being circulated by the women's intergroup committee. The pledge is being circulated on campus by the Interreligious Council.

The Rev. Everett H. Greene, chaplain to Episcopal students at URI, described his observations of student campaigns for civil rights in the South last year.

Michael Doyle, executive chairman of the SDA, was chairman of the conference. Gerald Duguay of URI was moderator of Saturday's conference and Stephenie Stillwell of Pembroke was in charge of Friday's meeting.

Blue Key Sets Weekend Plans

Lambert, Hendricks and Ross, Columbia recording artists, will be the feature attraction of the URI Blue Key Society's three-day Blue Key Weekend to be held Mar. 9-10.

The concert will be part of the weekend's activities in the annual fund raising drive for the Campus Chest.

Friday, March 9, there will be a charity bazaar at Keaney Gym starting at 8 p.m. Each housing unit and various campus organizations participate in the carnival by building and operating booths and games.

Some of the entries this year will present a look to the future with astronauts, space capsules and exotic foods of the space age. The two best booths will be awarded trophies.

In addition, each male housing unit will sponsor a candidate for Blue Key Queen and the queen will

Rear Adm. Hardy Credits Glenn With 'Skillful Piloting'

Rear Admiral James D. Hardy, former director of an acceleration laboratory where the Mercury astronauts spent part of their training, said last week it was the skillful piloting by Col. John H. Glenn Jr. which made America's first man in-orbit shot a success.

Speaking at a meeting of the Naval Research Company at URI, Adm. Hardy said, "It was Glenn's good piloting itself that made it a success and not the automatic system which partly broke down."

Admiral Hardy said "the important thing is there was a man up there who could do something. I doubt whether the shot would have been a success if there had been a

Women's Rules Are Topic of Petition

The Committee on Women's Regulations of the Students for Democratic Action is presently circulating a petition among women students which contains proposed changes in the "Blue Book" and administrative regulations.

The petition, which will be presented to the Association of Women Students for consideration, reads: "As women students of the University of Rhode Island and as members of the Association of Women Students, we feel it is our right and obligation to suggest the following changes in women's regulations, in accordance with Article XII of those regulations."

Among the proposed changes are later week night and weekend curfews. Class hours would end at 10 p. m. for freshmen and at 11:30 p. m. for upperclassmen. House closing hours would be at 11:30 p. m. for freshmen, sophomores, and juniors and at 12 p. m. for seniors.

Need For Fallout Shelters Discussed

Fallout shelters and their importance to the community of Kingston were discussed by a panel at last Wednesday night's meeting of the Community Program for Peace.

The panel, conducted by Dr. Erwin H. Johnson, URI associate professor of sociology, was for the most part against both bomb and fallout shelters. The panel felt that they would be inadequate against an all-out nuclear war and that they are financially impossible and psychologically immoral.

Warren D. Smith, URI professor of English and a member of the panel, criticized the use of fallout shelter signs on URI property.

Carl V. Slader, URI associate professor of physical education for men, defended the purpose of the signs. He said that they make students aware of the situation. Mr. Slader is a member of the civil defense committee which installed the signs.

Who Will He Be?

One of the most important student positions on campus is that of Student Senate president. There he stands—the representative of every student, the spokesman, the authority, the leader.

Next Monday night, a new Student Senate president will be elected. Who will lead the organization—Gene Dattore, Bill Lacey or Steve Rosenberg? We'll know soon. The campus awaits eagerly.

The election of the Student Senate president should be the concern of every student because every student, either directly or indirectly, comes under his domain.

It often happens in the case of student elections that a person is chosen because he has thrown the biggest party or has dated a girl from a particular house. This kind of qualification is ridiculous when speeches to be made at conferences, discussions to be held with administrative officials, stands to be taken on issues and decisions to be made come into play.

It is important that the Student Senate president be respected by everyone on campus. Whether he is personally liked by all the undergraduates may be open to question. The important thing is that he be respected, both because of the nature of his office and the authority inherent in it.

The Student Senate president should be a person of highest character and pleasant personality. He should never be too busy to spend time discussing a problem with a student. He should accept the presidency not because of the prestige or glory he thinks will come with it, but because of the absolute good he thinks he can do for every individual student.

There has been much dissatisfaction both this year and in the past with the Student Senate because, although it is supposed to be the major student organization, it has not made its importance and voice heard on campus as powerfully as it could. The Student Senate should be the top organization, one whose decisions will be the final word on matters. The necessity of a strong leader to achieve this goal is imperative.

We urge every student in every housing and commuter unit to discuss the nominees and inform their unit's representatives of their preference. Since this decision will ultimately affect every student on campus, every student should have his say in the matter.

Along these lines, we urge that careful consideration be given next year to a revision of the Student Senate constitution so that in the years hence all-campus elections for the Student Senate president can be held climaxing a period of active campaigning by the nominees.

It is the responsibility of every student to make sure that the person who assumes the gavel after next week's Student Senate meeting is the best person for the job. If student government is to work effectively, its leader must be outstanding in every way. Let's make sure he is.

No Room For Hypocrites

The prevalence of unreported "dirty rushing" incidents during the rushing period, which ends Saturday, we feel necessitates a re-evaluation of the Interfraternity Council by the member fraternities.

The necessity comes not from the inadequacies of the individual members of the council. They have been doing a commendable job. It comes from the inability of the member fraternities to live up to one of the objectives they set forth, to avoid "dirty rushing."

According to the organization of the IFC, each house is supposed to have a representative who is supposed to turn in his fraternity if it violates this rushing code. This is ideal, in theory, but this is only one person to watch over the actions of 50 or more brothers. Consequently, very few names are reported to the IFC, which can act only when violations are brought to its attention.

It appears to us that the solution to the problem has two alternatives. First is the dissolution of the IFC which would result in wide open "dirty rushing" which would not be beneficial to the fraternities nor to the university.

The second alternative proves to be more practical. It is simply that fraternities as a whole, each member included, apply the basic characteristics of a fraternity man: honesty, integrity and a sense of fair play. Each fraternity brother must feel himself personally responsible for the conduct of his fellow brothers and himself.

Three Cheers!

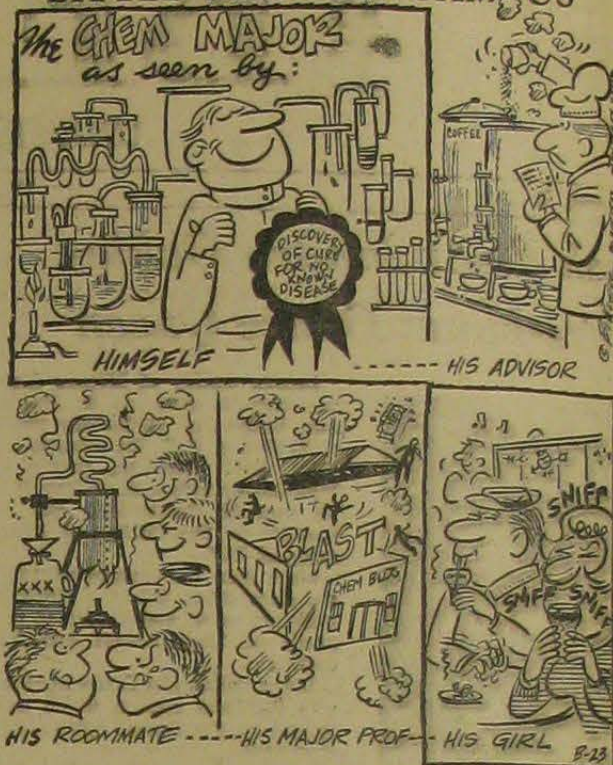

The orbital flight of John Glenn during the past week demonstrates what American determination is capable of accomplishing even in the face of considerable postponements.

John Glenn's historic flight not only placed an American in orbit and culminated the mission of Project Mercury, but it also definitely put the U. S. in the race for the moon.

There are other implications of the flight, such as a possible U. S.—Soviet cooperation in the peaceful exploration of outer space.

To Colonel Glenn and the members of his team, we, too, would like to extend our congratulations for a job well done.

Letters to the Editor

In order to be considered for publication, all letters must be signed by the author. Names will be withheld upon request. All letters printed are from members of the campus community unless noted otherwise by the addition of the author's address.

Attention Rushees!

No freshman may attend any fraternity-sponsored party, private or otherwise, until bids are given out on Saturday at 1 p.m. in Edwards Hall.

Any freshman who is present at such a party, on or off campus, will have his bid privileges removed and will not be able to pledge a fraternity until next year. Any fraternity having such a party will be immediately restricted to a certain number of bids as determined by the Interfraternity Council.

All other rushing rules, as outlined in the rushing brochure, will be followed during this formal rush period. Infraction of any of these rushing rules will be dealt with at a special meeting of the IFC the morning of the day bids are given out.

The best of luck to you freshmen who are about to choose a fraternity. Please consider every aspect of the fraternity before you make your final choice.

Another Opinion

THE BEACON's editorial last week about the "Good Neighbor" pledge baffles me. You say you oppose discrimination and favor fair housing and yet, you suggest that students who agree with the pledge should not sign it.

You imply there is some ulterior motive for the circulation of the pledge that is somehow not reputable. And yet, you do not tell us what this "ulterior motive" is.

I would suggest that the reason is that some people on this campus think there are issues more important than school spirit, and that one of these issues is the persistent denial of decent housing to a large percentage of the American population.

Perhaps you would like a tour through the slums of our great cities where you can see the substandard housing Negroes are forced to live in, usually at exorbitant rents. Perhaps you should question some of the Negro students on campus about problems they have had getting decent housing. I think you will then become aware of the "ulterior motive" of opponents of housing discrimination.

What annoys me about the editorial is that it does not give any good reason for not signing the pledge. It finds nothing wrong with the pledge or with those circulating it. It can only fight with innuendo and suggestion. It can only suggest that something must be wrong.

If something is wrong, say it. I respect the man who says I am wrong and points out where he considers me in error. We say what we think. Why don't you?

GSA Takes Stand

(Ed. Note: This is a copy of a letter sent to Edward McGuire, director of housing.)

At our last general meeting, the members of the Graduate Student Association went on record in favor of asking your office to require that an "open vacancy clause" be signed by anyone listing off-campus living accommodations with the university.

It is our belief that significant progress towards creating equal opportunity for all, regardless of heritage, will be realized through positive actions of this type.

It is our sincere desire that the expression of disapproval with the present practice regarding off-campus housing will be helpful in establishing a more democratic policy.

Backstage

by Lonnie Torman

What do God and Satan look like? This was a major question which the University Theatre faced last month as the technical preparation for "J. B." began.

In the plot of "J. B." two broken-down actors are reduced to selling popcorn and balloons in a circus. In an effort to exercise their rusty talents and re-inflate their egos, they act out the parts of God and Satan after closing time on a side-show stage.

The two characters, Zuss and Nickles, don masks representing their characters and find that they are mysteriously able to control the actions of the "J. B." of the title. Zuss and Nickles will be portrayed by Tom Hardy and Steve Crowley in the University Theatre production March 15-18.

Masks are not new to the theatre. The early Greek theatre used masks with built-in megaphones to serve a very real function in their productions. The masks in ancient days provided necessary voice amplification to the audience, which was in a large amphitheatre. The masks used by the Greeks were usually twice the size of the actor's head and carved around the face to form a sort of echo chamber which helped the actor to project his voice more easily to the huge audience.

The masks, which the University Theatre will use, were designed by Anne Gabeler, who also designed the statue of the angel in the first play of the year, "Look Homeward Angel."

Plaster of paris models of the masks are almost ready for use in rehearsals. These models will also be used to make voice projection tests. The masks which will be used in the final production will be made out of "celastic" a plastic impregnated paper which is easily molded when wet and dries into a material which is harder than wood. "Celastic" was used by The University Theatre to form the "Angel" of the first play.

The problem of how to artistically portray God and Satan in these masks was solved last month by Steve Travis, the director of "J. B."

Mr. Travis said the design of the masks were based upon descriptive hints in the lines of Archibald MacLeish's play.

The God-mask, which is somewhat similar to the mask used in the original New York production, will be the traditional portrayal of a figure of awe and majesty which easily would strike terror into the hearts of the characters.

The Satan-mask is based upon a hint by Nickles, who says in part in the play: "Look at those lips. They've tasted something; Bitter as a broth of blood, And spat the sup out."

Tickets for "J. B." may be obtained beginning March 5 at the Quinn Hall box office.

Aggie Engineer Receives Invite

Prof. Philip H. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer at URI, has been invited to attend the President's Conference on Occupational Safety, March 6-8 in Washington, D. C.

President Kennedy will address the more than 8,000 delegates to the conference on some of the more urgent safety problems facing the country.

Other speakers at the conference include Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, conference chairman; Eugene A. McNeely, president of American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Anthony J. Celebrezze, mayor of Cleveland, Ohio; Leslie Washington, president of the United States Steel Corporation, and Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council.

Electrical Engineering Dept. Receives $8389 Science Grant

The URI department of electrical engineering has been awarded a $8,389 grant by the National Science Foundation for the year beginning July 1. The department will use this grant for the expansion of a current project in "Undergraduate Research Participation" which was supported by a $3,400 NSF grant in 1961-62.

The new scholarship will make it possible to give stipends to six students during the summer of 1962 and the following academic year. In addition, the grant will free one or two faculty members of a quarter of their teaching load for work with honor students in electrical engineering. This work will be carried on within the framework of the honors program recently approved by the Faculty Senate.

Students will participate in current departmental research on problems in electrical engineering and allied fields of geophysics such as underwater acoustics, ultralow frequency radio propagation, and seismic surface wave propagation.

NORTH HALL

Plans for the new North Hall, to be located behind Woodward Hall in a East-West direction, will be completed soon, Dr. Harold W. Browning, URI vice president, said last week. He said the new building will not affect the women's hockey field which was completed last summer.

The new math building will be three stories high with a computer lab in the basement, classrooms on the second floor and office spaces on the third.

Construction will start April 1, and completion is expected by Oct. 1, Dr. Browning said.

URI Debate Council Holds Coffee Hour

The URI Debate Council will sponsor an Open Forum Coffee Hour in the Union Lounge on Tuesday, March 6, at 4 p.m.

The topic under discussion will be whether national fraternities with discriminatory clauses should be forced to "go local."

A panel of four will begin the forum with brief statements concerning the topic. Two panelists will speak for the topic and two against it.

The program will be the first in a series of Open Forum coffee hours sponsored by the council. Persons attending will be allowed to participate.

'The Men's Digest' Sponsors Contest

"The Men's Digest," sponsors of a competition open to college students, will award $500 for the best answer in 100 words or less to the question: "What is the difference between the systems of free enterprise and socialism?"

Entries must be received by "The Men's Digest," 3755 W. Armitage Avenue, Chicago 47, Illinois no later than June 1.

Judging the entries will be Dr. Peter F. Meyer, Ph.D., former National Director of the Statehood Campaign for Alaska and Hawaii; Jesse Owens, American Olympic star and Paul G. Neimark, editor-in-chief of "The Men's Digest."

Dining Addition To Be Completed

The addition to the women's dining unit will be completed by the end of this semester, according to Merle A. Brown, director of dining services. Mr. Brown added that completion of the addition was another step toward increasing the efficiency of the dining services.

Working closely with the student advisory board, Mr. Brown said he has made several changes in the menu. He said that in most New England universities a student could not have a choice of what to eat on any meal.

"Students of these schools either eat what is on the menu or they don't eat," said Mr. Brown. "The various choices offered in the menu have helped to satisfy the student body as a whole and we will continue this policy since it is our aim to please the student," he said.

SUGGESTION ANYONE?

Any student who has a suggestion or recipe for a foreign food that could be served in the university dining halls is asked to leave the information in one of the suggestion boxes in the dining halls.

Rodman Report

by Ginny Giroux

Last Saturday, URI played host to three New England colleges in a sports day sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association in co-operation with the department of physical education for women.

Colleges participating included Clark, Sargeant, Southern Connecticut and URI. Events that were played included badminton, basketball, bowling and volleyball.

The badminton championship was split between two teams, with Southern Connecticut winning the singles and URI winning the doubles.

In basketball, Sargeant proved to be the victor with three wins and no losses. The URI teams came in third with one win and two losses.

The Memorial Union proved to be an exciting place (where the bowling tournament was taking place.) Sargeant took first place with 1308 pins, while the URI team placed second with 1187 pins.

In the volleyball tournament, Southern Connecticut came in first

Miss Jane M. Yosepian of the WAA announced that Gloria Banach had been elected chairman of the Junior Orchestras. All girls who are interested are encouraged to attend.

On Tuesday evening, March 6, the Senior Orchestras dance group will perform for the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Sheraton Biltmore.

This week, the badminton honor club has a special treat for those girls who are interested. Mr. Phillips, state champion in badminton, will give a demonstration on Thursday, March 6 at 5 p.m. at Lippitt.

The basketball honor club got off to a good start by defeating Radcliffe College last week. On Thursday, March 1, the members will test their skills against University of Connecticut at Rodman.

lege, than it is not asking too much that he accept the small hardship of surrendering a few hours a week in order to acquire the basic skills of being a soldier," he said.

Mr. Gallogly suggested that the many hours spent in the Memorial Union is equal to the time spent in ROTC and maybe "the 'Union time' might partially be devoted to a student's broader interest and/or his major academic fields of emphasis."

URI is not a free university, Mr. Gallogly said. The student who attends URI is there at the expense of the State and country taxpayer, he said.

"The existence of an ROTC curriculum is not an imposition upon the university but rather a service rendered to the student and school," he said.

chimpanzee in place of Glenn," Adm. Hardy said. "This was a man-size job, not a chimp-size job," he added.

Admiral Hardy was appointed director of the Aviation Medical Acceleration Laboratory in Johnsville, Pa. in 1953. He is a professor of physiology at the Yale University School of Medicine.

"The opponents of the Mercury program claim the project is just for publicity," Admiral Hardy said. "This is true but it's only part of it. The main purpose of this program is to show it can be done."

"Col. Glenn went through two critical periods of acceleration," the admiral continued. "This was where our job at the laboratory came in."

Admiral Hardy said the Mercury astronauts were trained to withstand 20 g's or force 20 times the normal force of gravity.

He said g-force experiments were conducted on the Navy's centrifuge at the Johnsville laboratory. A centrifuge is a rotating device large enough to hold a man and capable of producing g-forces similar to those experienced in rocket flight.

"The main problem is acceleration is keeping the body from becoming distorted," the admiral said.

He said acceleration causes the body to distort thereby damaging blood vessels and possibly rupturing vital body organs.

Illustrating his lecture with slides and a movie, Admiral Hardy explained several experimental methods of overcoming the harmful effects of excessive acceleration.

One method is to place the astronaut in a tank filled with water.

"The water," he explained, "having almost the same density of the human body eliminates much of the harmful effects."

"The big goal in these experiments is to make it possible for man to withstand 400 g's," the admiral said.

Commenting on the astronaut program Admiral Hardy said the present Mercury program will probably use up the remaining men in the team.

"Then there will probably be a lag until 1965 or '67 until the Apollo Program, or space station project, gets going," he said.

Career Cues:

"Whatever your major, make sure to include a course in 'people'!"

W. Emlen Roosevelt, President
National State Bank, Elizabeth, N. J.

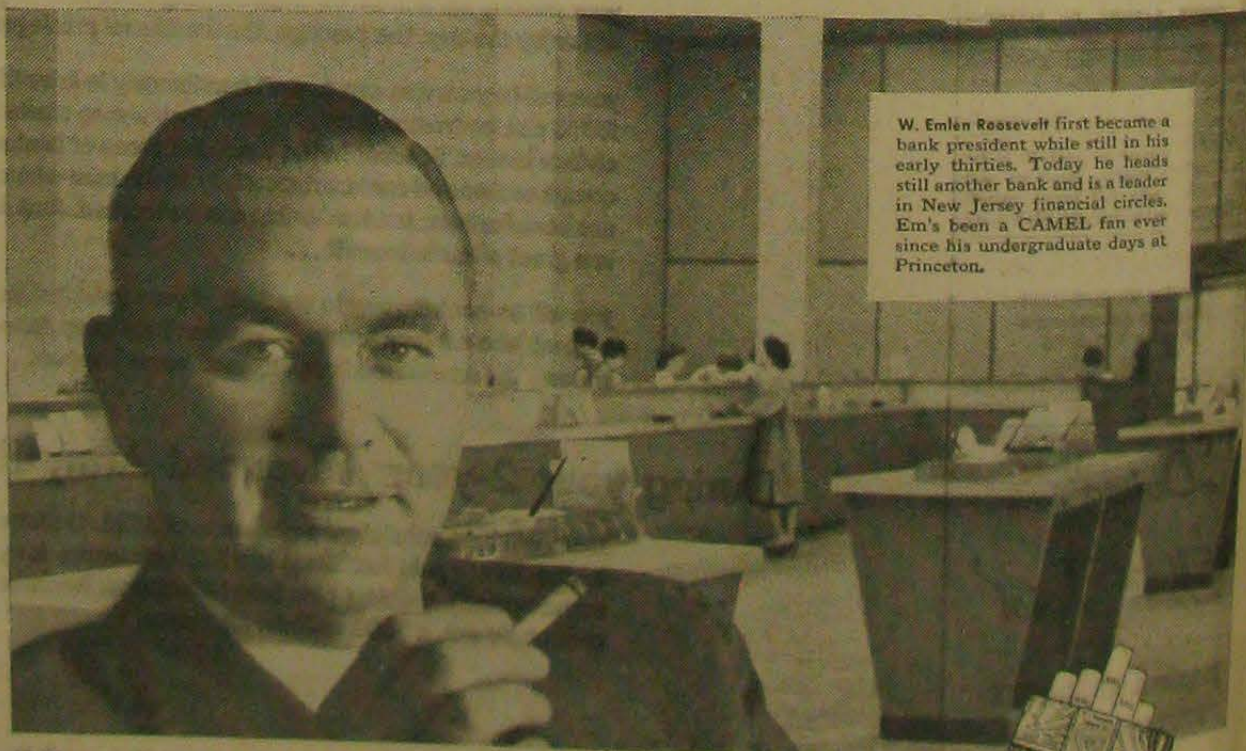

"If my college adviser had prophesied that studying psychology would some day help promote my career in banking, I'd have scoffed. Yet that is exactly what has happened. And when I think about it now the reason seems obvious. The facts and figures of banking, or of any other field, are mechanical devices. They take on real meaning only when related to people.

"Good psychology is also the basis of all teamwork. And, since most of today's business and scientific problems are too complicated for 'one man' solutions, teamwork is essential. If you want to be a valuable team player, and a likely candidate for captain, be the person who understands people. Learn what it takes for people to work together in harmony. Learn how to win trust and confidence. Learn basic human psychology.

"Bear this in mind, too. World tension, community tension, business tension, even family tension are the facts of everyday life. The more you know of human behavior, the better prepared you will be to deal with these problems.

"So, if you have the chance, take a course devoted to 'people.' Your class adviser can probably help you fit a psychology elective into your schedule. I don't think you'll regret it... I know I didn't."

W. Emlen Roosevelt first became a bank president while still in his early thirties. Today he heads still another bank and is a leader in New Jersey financial circles. Em's been a CAMEL fan ever since his undergraduate days at Princeton.

THE BEST TOBACCO MAKES THE BEST SMOKE

RAMbling along....

by Alan Birkenfeld

There was an All-American team of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Called by some "the best small center in college basketball," Koenig has consistently battled taller opponents in all of the Ram's games over his three-year varsity career, and has come up with over 330 rebounds thus far this season, while leading all rebounders in the state, including Providence's 6-10 giant Jim Hadnot and John Thompson. At 6-6, Gary will in all probability surpass last season in total rebounds when he grabbed 393 off of the boards.

An example of Koenig's value can be seen last week in the game against Springfield College, when he roped in 24 stray shots. Time and time again, the Rams were getting two and three tries as Koenig tapped back missed attempts to his teammates.

Back at Hackensack High School, Gary wasn't always the big rebounder—as a matter-of-fact, in his sophomore year, Coach Fred Smilari saw that Koenig was 6-5 but only weighed 165 pounds. Yet, the mold began to be formed, and has only been completed since last year. One reason for the delay is the few injuries Gary has suffered: for instance, in High School, Gary was involved in a serious automobile accident, in which his long legs were cramped under the dashboard, and his hip and jaw were broken. As a result, he was told that his basketball career was over, but, because of his constant determination, only one year was cut out of his career.

Gary's biggest game probably was last year against St. Bonaventure in the first round of the NCAA Tournament held at Madison Square Garden, when the Rams lost 86-76 after leading for the first 25 minutes. Gary out-rebounded and out-scored the Bonnies' center, Bob McCully.

Thus far this season, Gary has been averaging just under ten points per game, by far his best point production for any season. The Rams with their fighting center have three games remaining—don't miss them. With Gary in there, you know they'll be exciting.

Rams to Face Maine, UConn

The URI varsity basketball team has three important games coming this week, the first two being the most important games of the season. On Thursday, the Rams play with the University of Maine at home; Saturday, Rhody plays at the University of Connecticut, and, on Tuesday, URI travels to Providence to take on Brown in the last regularly scheduled game of the season.

The first two games represent the most important games as far as the Yankee Conference standings are concerned. If the Rams win both, they are certain of at least a tie with the University of Massachusetts for first place in the Conference.

The Rams defeated Maine by 4 points two weeks ago at Maine while putting on an amazing shooting exhibition, as they hit for 62 percent from the field. Dave Rice and Charlie Lee each scored 20 points, while Bobby Logan added 17. Maine is always dangerous, however, while Tom "Skip" Chappelle is in the lineup. Chappelle is currently second in scoring in the VC scoring parade. After the Rhode Island game, Maine upset Connecticut by two points, to hurt the latter's chances of a share in the VC crown. This is the last home game of the season.

The big game is at Connecticut on Saturday, if the Rams get by Maine. The Rams already defeated the Huskies by seven points at home in January, to show that they can handle their height deficiency. Connecticut bases its offense around Ed Slomcenski, who is currently averaging 11.1, Lenny Carlson, 15.6, and Andy Czuchry. Tickets for this game are on sale at Keane Gym.

Lenny Carlson, of the University of Connecticut.

Rams Lose to Georgetown, Sat.

The URI varsity basketball team experienced one of their worst shooting nights of the season last Saturday when they lost to Georgetown University 93-71 at Washington, D. C. Bob Sharpenter, a 6-7, 220-pound senior, led all scorers with 30 points, while Jim Carrino added 18 points for the Hoyas. Charlie Lee led the Rams with 27 points.

The Rams were behind almost from the outset, for at the end of six minutes, they were losing 20-9. At halftime, the Hoyas led, 45-35.

The Rams began to move as the second half opened. Lee hit on a jump shot from the side, Bob Logan hit two foul shots, and Lee added a three-point play, cutting the deficit to five points. Carrino hit two field goals for Georgetown, but the Rams came back strong as Dave Ricereto and Lee started to hit consistently, closing the lead to 51-49, after six minutes of play in the second half.

The Rams stayed close within the next few minutes while trailing by no more than four points, but then the Hoyas hit a hot streak, and that was the ball game.

The Rams play their last home game tomorrow night when the University of Maine will be visiting. Gametime is 8:15.

The Rams' current record is now 13-10, while Georgetown is 13-7. The summary:

HOW TO BE A BWOC

Ladies, let me be frank. The days of the college year dwindle down to a precious few. And some of you—let's face it—have not yet become BWOC's. Yes, I know, you've been busy what with going to class and walking your cheetah, but really, ladies, becoming a BWOC is so easy if you'll only follow a few simple rules.

The first and most basic step on the road to being a BWOC is to attract attention. Get yourself noticed. But be very, very careful not to do it the wrong way. I mean, any old girl is bound to be noticed if she goes around with a placard that says, "HEY! LOOKIT ME!" Don't you make such a horrid gaffe. On your placard put: "ZUT! REGARDEZ MOI!" This, as you can see, lends a whole new dimension of tone and dignity.

Once you have been noticed, it is no longer necessary to carry the placard. It will suffice if, from time to time, you make distinctive noises. If, for instance, every three or four minutes you cry, "Whippoorwill!" you cannot but stay fresh in the minds of onlookers.

We come now to clothes, a vital accessory to the BWOC—indeed, to any girl who wishes to remain out of jail. But to the BWOC clothes are more than just a decent cover; they are, it is not too much to say, a way of life.

This spring the "little boy look" is all the rage on campus. Every coed, in a mad effort to look like a little boy, is wearing short pants, knee socks, and boyshirts. But the BWOC is doing more. She has gone the whole hog in achieving little boyhood. She has frogs in her pockets, scabs on her knees, down on her upper lip, and is followed everywhere by a dog named Spot.

All this, of course, is only by day. When evening falls and her date comes calling, the BWOC is the very picture of chic femininity. She dresses in severe, simple basic black, relieved only by a fourteen pound charm bracelet. Her hair is exquisitely coiffed, with a fresh rubber band around the pony tail. Her daytime sneakers have been replaced by fashionable high heeled pumps, and she does not remove them until she gets to the movies.

After the movies, at the campus cafe, the BWOC undergoes her severest test. The true BWOC will never, never, never, order the entire menu. This is gluttony and can only cause one's date to blanch. The true BWOC will pick six or seven good entrees and then have nothing more till dessert. This is class and is the hallmark of the true BWOC.

Finally, the BWOC, upon being asked by the cigarette vendor which is the brand of her choice, will always reply, "Marlboro, of course!" For any girl knows that a Marlboro in one's hand stamps one instantly as a person of taste and discernment, the possessor of an educated palate, as a connoisseur of the finer, loftier pleasures. This Marlboro, this badge of smokey-fair, comes to you in flip-top boxes that flip, or in soft packs that are soft, with a filter that filters and a flavor that is flavorful, in all fifty states of the Union and Duluth.

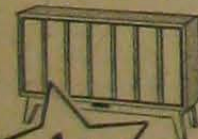

BWOC: Buy Marlboro On Campus. Buy them downtown too. Either place, you get a lot to like.
